There is a magnetic whiteboard, a chalkboard, a tray with cups for painting, and a roller for hanging a paper roll. PROS Whiteboard is very smooth and erases well Whiteboard is magnetic Chalkboard works well The tray is heavy duty enough to hold heavy items The height is adjustable so it can grow with your kid CONS At the lowest height setting, the stability of the easel isn't the best around kids. The description states it's nontoxic and safe, however the box has it written across the outside. I will be returning it. I know so many products and our homes have formaldehyde however if I can prevent 1 more toxic product coming into my home the better, especially if my children are going to spend so much time with it. After hours of mind boggling research, I settled on the Crayola easel. Manufacturer's info says good for kids 4-12. My 7 yr old would have to bend down to paint on this. The picture of the 2 kids painted should give you an idea of how big it is. They look to be about preschool age and that easel is fully extended. It's sturdy and has great features but I don't think a child older than 5ish would really find it comfortable to use. I want to teach him to balance and I want to guide him towards this balance so I bought this. He LOVES it. He draws on the chalkboard and write on the whiteboard I don't let him use the paper yet for paints. lol. <http://dochoiotovn.com/uploads/userfiles/ford-fieta-service-and-repair-manual-pdf.xml>

All I can say is that this is a really nice item. Its a quality, solid, well made product and has been serving him greatly since I got it for him. The tray under the board is handy for leaving his crayons and markers within reach. He spends a lot less time on the electronic devices now. The wooden frame has a consistency of balsa wood, and is very flimsy. Whomever assembled it at the factory did a really terrible job as the easel is full of defects from over torquing the hardware. I would have returned it but I would not have had a replacement by Christmas. A broken easel is better than no easel I suppose. Steer clear of this one if possible. There are a few screws about 6, I think and an Allan wrench but it's fairly painless. One person can do it. As far as how my kid likes the toy and the quality of it, everything is very good. The adjustable heights are a really nice touch. You can't go wrong that it's double sided either. This will be a toy we can enjoy for years to come. I only wish they included some dry erase markers and chalk. I added the picture about formaldehyde because someone else mentioned it. I think they may have misunderstood the label. It says it is complaint for formaldehyde. My only problem one of the glidecuts in the adjustable legs had not been cut all the way, so I had to do some of my own drilling in order to raise it the other three legs were cut perfectly. Besides that, this is a great product. The paper roll sits nicely on top and can be slid through to two guides in order to secure it, and the cups are sturdy and seal well. The only reason why Im not giving it 5 stars is for the glitch in the leg which was easily fixed. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again For the price, if i knew this today and paid better attention to what Im buying I would 100000% take a different brand do your research, there are items like this just as nice from other brands that come with a load of paint, brushers markers magnets erasers etc.

Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again Finish on the woodwork was damaged in numerous spots. The three major spots that were able to be seen in photographs are attached, but others also were seen. For the price of this item and with the name Crayola attached to it, I expected better. It would have been returned, but since this was during the Covid19 pandemic, it was not worth it. However, my granddaughter does enjoy it and uses it. I just expected that the product quality would be better for the price and the company name attached to it. I was disappointed in the product. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Not for children under 3 yrs. Here are some features worth noting. The height of this easel measuring from work space to the floor is 3 feet 2 inches 97 cm. It is perfect for my 2.5 year old, and is a pretty good height for my 4.5 year old. We also got a chair for my taller child to sit on and she was very comfortable. The work space is long and low, so it would be perfect for even younger children to reach. The dryerase side is magnetic and works well with a variety of magnetic learning tools in addition to the magnetic letters included with this product. We have some magnetic pictures of boys and girls that we have used, creating scenery with dryerase markers and arranging the magnetic figures to create a story. For additional educational uses, you could create flash cards for prereading and early readers to put on the board and have them copy by arranging the magnetic letters or practice writing with dryerase markers. The markers appear very clearly on the board and are easy to clean off. The chalkboard side of this easel is not magnetic in case anyone else was wondering. The instructions for care of the board say not to use sidewalk chalk because its material is more abrasive. When we opened it, we didnt have any of the proper chalk and only had the sidewalk chalk and can report that in the shortterm if your children accidentally use the wrong kind of chalk it will not ruin the board. It doesnt show any noticeable scratches and is still easy to clean off. For optimal performance of your chalkboard, definitely follow the manufacturers instructions and recommendations. But if you children use the wrong kind of chalk on it, the product is of good quality and durable. Nothing will be ruined. We have used the dryerase crayons on both sides of the board and they work great. Honestly, this is a great product. I get tired of letting my children zone out on electronic devices and this easel provides them with the opportunity to create and have fun on their own.

It seems kind of silly that it doesnt come with chalk or dry erase pens, seeing as how Crayola makes them. But if I were to get this toy again I would make sure to get both pens and chalk before I take the toy home to be able to use it completely. The dry erase board is fun to arrange magnets on, and very useful with a child learning to count, or spell. Its also really fun to draw on, and I have found that a simple baby wipe works wonders on keeping it clean as it can be. The chalkboard has to be seasoned before use when you coat it one way, and then the other, then wipe off but other than that its super simple. It even has some yellow clips on each side of the boards that allow you to clip paper to draw on that too. Expect to make lots of art on this awesome toy. It is sturdy for two children to play on simultaneously and features four deep shelf pockets to store markers, letters, crayons, paint, and chalk. My nephew, Coley, loves this easel set and is learning to spell out words with the magnetic letters. He loves to draw with Crayola markers on the dry erase board, or, on sheets of paper held by the large paper clip, which has one on each side. He even lets one of his sisters draw on the chalkboard while he is creating his masterpieces on the dry erase board. This easel folds away flat when not in use under a bed or in a closet. The chalkboard requires Crayola chalk and to be seasoned before use. Both boards clean easily, and, are ideal for clipping art paper and using Crayola washable paints.

Coley even uses the dry erase board to play games with his sisters and playmates like TicTacToe and PinTheTailOnTheDonkey using the magnetic letters to hold the donkey. Would highly recommend this easel set to any of your little budding artists. You can purchase Crayola markers and crayons, Crayola chalk and washable paints pretty reasonably at Walmart for use with this easel. Only the magnetic letters and numbers and an eraser is furnished with this inexpensive toy. Rubberized pads work the best. November 11, 2014 Our kids love creating and learning with this easel. It is brightly colored and is a very inviting toy to use. It takes about three minutes to assemble the easel and it is made of extremely durable plastic. My three year old decided to sit on the storage cups and it didnt break. It has been sat on, knocked over, and leaned on and it survived it all! This two sided easel is for use with chalk and dry erase markers. Neither is included so you may want to purchase these as well if you plan to give as a gift. It does come with magnetic letters and numbers dry erase board is magnetic too and also an eraser. The easel folds for easy storage and is very lightweight. This is something I wasnt aware of or heard of doing until I read the enclosed directions. I wish the clips used to hold the paper to the chalk and dry erase boards were made to endure a bit more pulling; my preschooler was using the clip to hold her artwork while working and the paper kept sliding out. This is my only complaint with this product. Overall I am very satisfied with the easel and think Crayola did a great job with it. Set up was super easy and you can hear the cubbies and sides snap into place securely. I would recommend buying some chalk and dry erase markers as this doesnt come with any. Still a fantastic deal for the price and I feel like the magnets will keep him entertained until the rest of the supplies we ordered for it arrive. I included a photo for size reference. We are very happy with this easel and he loves it for drawing and the magnetic side. Only downside was the letters included are very small with tiny chokeable magnets in hard plastic. We just use our larger foam letters that we already owned. See more Reviewed by Patricia Patricia Helpful. November 29, 2014 As a mom, its important to have lots of educational and fun toys for our little one to learn. Lets get into this amazing 3in1 magnetic board.

From delivery, I was surprised at how lightweight and easy it was to put this up. The board already comes assembled, which is a huge plus. You just put the two yellow stands up on the side and you're all set. The board came with 4 yellow holders, to hold markers, the magnets, and chalk. What is really great about this is that it comes with the magnetic letters, the only thing you have to buy is the chalk or dry erase markers. It's a lovely size, so it fits perfectly in the corner of my son's room and we have a lot of fun making words and drawing pictures.

The actual boards do not come off although it looks like it does due to the clipboard. The dry erase board is super easy to clean, I used a cloth and no cleaning products. The chalkboard is easy as well, because the set comes with an eraser for the chalk board and dry erase section. Overall, I'd definitely recommend, it'd make for a nice gift. Yes 4 No 1 Report Average Rating 4.0 out of 5 stars 62 ratings, based on 62 reviews Great introduction to various artistic mediums November 15, 2014 This is perfect for either a child that has very little experience with using different art materials for play, or for one that already enjoys such things. In my case, my little girl is only 23 months old, so she is not yet familiar with using chalk and dry erase markers just yet, but still loves this easel already. The magnetic dry erase board provides a great surface for the included colorful magnets 77 of them, so that is what currently has captured her attention. The magnets are not only of letters and numbers, but include some math symbols as well, and come in five vibrant colors purple, green, yellow, orange, and pink. These are perfect for developing math and spelling skills, as well as artistic expression. This particular set only comes with an eraser for both chalk and dry erase markers and the magnets, so be aware that the chalk, paper, and dry erase markers themselves will have to be purchased separately to use. There are other package sets that can be purchased that do include paper and chalk. According to the instructions, the dry erase board is not made to be used with permanent or washable markers and the chalk side is not made to use with sidewalk chalk, or anything that is not calcium carbonate based.

Both sides include a clip at the top to attach paper to create pictures on the easel, but to avoid any damage to either board, I would definitely recommend using thick and long paper to cover the entire board surface, that will not bleed through or scratch the board underneath during use. It might be better just to use as display clips for pictures created elsewhere. The easel itself is fairly lightweight and really easy to assemble once you separate the tightly stacked bins apart right out of the box. The easel can easily slide on smooth surfaces, so I would recommend using on either a rug or carpeting. The four yellow bins two on each side that easily attach are pretty deep, so they can definitely hold a lot of materials, which is great. Overall this easel a nice toy to grow into and should provide several years of entertainment and use. See more Reviewed by ccsakura ccsakura Spark Reviewer Helpful. Yes 7 No 5 Report Average Rating 4.0 out of 5 stars 62 ratings, based on 62 reviews Very nice for arts and crafts!! December 9, 2014 I love this Crayola easel, I think every kid should own an easel. This is an excellent product for your little artist. This easel is made of plastic which makes it easy to clean off. This is great for painting considering it has the clips to hold the paper in place, which gives it a place to dry. It also comes with 77 magnets which are great for your little learner. It gives them the ability to try and spell words and also use the numbers to try out addition and subtraction if they are at that age. This easel can provide lots of time for arts and crafts. Little children love craft time. We've used this to make Thanksgiving and Christmas keepsakes for the grandparents, aunts, and uncles. It comes in handy for many of our craft needs. This is an excellent addition to our home. I would definitely recommend this easel to my family and friends with young children.

This easel doesn't take up too much space and also folds down for storage when not in use. This is a bonus when you don't have a lot of extra space to spare such as us. I can hide it away for another day when we are done using it. I give this product an A. See more Reviewed by aspoon86 aspoon86 Spark Reviewer Helpful. It was a good height for him to stand and play. He thoroughly enjoyed the magnetic letters and numbers. They were colourful and bright and there was enough for him to make some words and start to learn how to spell. The trays on each side were a nice addition as it allowed for him to store his chalk and pens and letters when he wasn't using them. He also used the tray to store his snacks and small drink in between. The only downside for me was that the board did not come with some chalk and a pen, which I had to purchase separately.
